Dear Editor,

Dear Pilgrims: the people of Chimayó are awaiting your arrival to the Santuario this Holy Week, and many of us want to make a request. In February the multinational telecommunications corporation T-Mobile threw up a microwave-emitting tower about a half mile from the Santuario; right next to our traditional plaza, community center, playground, weaving shops, and Presbyterian church – and perfectly-placed to send health-threatening non-ionizing radiation right into you. Our Chimayó Council on Wireless Technology and county commissioner Elias Coríz have worked to achieve a Río-Arriba-wide moratorium on future towers. It is regarding this tower that we make our plea: please spend a moment, or a mile, of your pilgrimage praying for Chimayó. We desperately want the tower out of the village – away from us and away from you. Please join us in praying for a miracle.

Sincerely,
